When your employees should consider telehealth

- When considering the ER or urgent care for non-emergency
- When a primary care physician is not immediately available
- When traveling and unfamiliar with local healthcare options
- When not able to leave home or work for care

“Our employees’ reception of RelyMD has been overwhelmingly positive. They’re no longer spending their free time in the urgent care or emergency department and they’re saving money by having 24/7/365 access to healthcare. The fact that they’re truly able to see a provider in less than 10 minutes really makes our employees trust the service.”
